

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The invention concerns peptides comprising epitopes recognized by antilaggrin in serum from rheumatoid arthritis patients. Said epitopes comprising a tripeptide motif centered on a citrulline residue. The invention also concerns artificial antigens comprising said epitopes, and their use for diagnosing rheumatoid arthritis.